

Ion Roceanu – IT Security Expert

Ion Roceanu has more than 20 years experience as professor and researcher at “Carol I” National Defence University. He has acted as vice-rector of science and innovation between 2012-2016. He has published books and scientific articles on different subjects in the field of military science, intelligence and security. Area of interests are especially around computer science in the military operations, cybersecurity and e-learning technology. Also, he is connected to the research activity where has developed projects at national level and international level, both in NATO and EU.